WHY KEEP A COFFEE LOG?

The difference between drinking coffee and understanding coffee is attention. A tasting log helps you discover patterns — which origins you gravitate toward, how grind size affects flavor, what brewing methods bring out the best in each bean. Over time, your log becomes your personal coffee roadmap.

Tips for Better Tasting

- 1. Taste with intention. Before you drink, pause. Smell the coffee. Take a small sip and let it coat your tongue. Note the first flavors that come to mind — these initial impressions are the most honest.
- 2. Record the basics. Origin, process, roast level, and brewing method are the foundation. The more consistently you log these, the easier it becomes to spot what you love.
- 3. Rate the fundamentals. Acidity, body, sweetness, and aftertaste are the building blocks of every cup. Rate each on a 1–5 scale. These numbers reveal your preferences over time.
- 4. Use the flavor wheel. The flavor categories on the reference page help you find the right words. Chocolate, citrus, berry, floral — trained cuppers use these terms, and so can you.
- 5. Compare and contrast. Taste two coffees side by side when you can. The differences become obvious when you have a reference point. Note what stood out in each.

Pro Tip: Let your coffee cool for a few minutes before tasting. Flavors bloom as the temperature drops. The sweet spot is around 140–160°F.

Coffee Flavor Wheel

Find the words for what you taste

FRUITY

Berry (blueberry, strawberry, raspberry, blackberry) • Citrus (orange, lemon, grapefruit, lime) • Stone Fruit (peach, apricot, cherry, plum) • Tropical (mango, pineapple, coconut, lychee)

FLORAL

Jasmine • Rose • Hibiscus • Chamomile • Tea-like • Elderflower

SWEET & SYRUP

Honey • Maple Syrup • Caramel • Brown Sugar • Molasses • Vanilla • Butterscotch

NUTTY & COCOA

Dark Chocolate • Milk Chocolate • Cocoa Powder • Almond • Hazelnut • Walnut • Peanut

SPICES

Cinnamon • Clove • Black Pepper • Nutmeg • Ginger • Cardamom

ROASTED

Toasty • Smoky • Tobacco • Burnt Sugar • Charred • Pipe Tobacco

VEGETAL & GREEN

Grassy • Herbal • Olive • Green Tea • Pea • Hay • Fresh Herbs

FERMENTED & OTHER

Winey • Whisky • Rum • Fermented • Funky • Earthy • Mushroom

Use these categories as a starting point. Your palate is unique — trust your own descriptions. The goal is to recognize patterns in what you enjoy.

Brewing Methods Guide

How you brew shapes what you taste

Pour Over	Clean, bright cup that highlights subtle flavors. Requires a gooseneck kettle and practice with pour technique. Best for: Light roasts, single-origin beans
French Press	Full-bodied, rich cup with heavy mouthfeel. Immersion brewing extracts oils and sediment. No paper filter needed. Best for: Medium and dark roasts, bold flavors
Espresso	Concentrated, intense shot with crema. Requires an espresso machine and fine grind. The base for lattes and cappuccinos. Best for: Blends, medium-dark to dark roasts
Cold Brew	Smooth, low-acidity coffee steeped in cold water for 12–24 hours. Naturally sweet and mellow. Best for: Hot summer days, sensitive stomachs
Moka Pot	Stovetop brewing that produces strong, espresso-like coffee. Rich and bold without expensive equipment. Best for: Strong coffee lovers on a budget
Drip Coffee	Automatic and convenient. Consistent results with minimal effort. The everyday workhorse of coffee brewing. Best for: Busy mornings, larger batches
Siphon	Dramatic vacuum brewing that produces a very clean, delicate cup. A showpiece method for coffee enthusiasts. Best for: Delicate, floral, light-roast coffees
Turkish	Finely ground coffee simmered in a special pot (cezve). Unfiltered, thick, and traditionally sweetened. Best for: Cultural experience, strong and bold palates

Coffee Growing Regions

Where your coffee comes from shapes what it tastes like

Ethiopia	The birthplace of coffee. Bright, floral, tea-like, with notes of jasmine, bergamot, and blueberry. Complex and elegant.
Colombia	Balanced and approachable. Medium body, bright acidity, with caramel, nut, and citrus notes. A crowd favorite.
Brazil	Low acidity, heavy body, with chocolate, nut, and caramel flavors. The backbone of many espresso blends.
Guatemala	Complex and full-bodied. Notes of cocoa, spice, and dark fruit. Bright finish with wine-like acidity.
Kenya	Bold and juicy. Wine-like acidity with blackberry, black currant, and tomato notes. Distinctive and memorable.
Costa Rica	Clean and sweet. Classic cup with citrus, honey, and caramel notes. High-grown beans with bright acidity.
Indonesia (Sumatra)	Earthy, full-bodied, and low in acidity. Notes of cedar, tobacco, dark chocolate, and mushroom. Bold and savory.
Honduras	Mild and sweet. Notes of caramel, brown sugar, and citrus. Increasingly recognized for quality.
Panama	Home of some of the world's most sought-after coffees. Delicate, floral, jasmine, and bergamot. Bright and tea-like.
Yemen	Wild, complex, and earthy. Winey, dried fruit, and chocolate notes. One of the oldest coffee origins.
Rwanda	Clean, sweet, and complex. Notes of red apple, cherry, and black tea. Bright with a syrupy body.
Peru	Smooth and mild. Notes of nuts, caramel, and gentle citrus. Often organic and fair-trade certified.

Tasting Terminology

Speak the language of coffee

Acidity

The bright, lively, tangy quality of coffee. Not the same as bitterness. A good acidity is pleasant and crisp, like a lemon or apple. Often called brightness.

Body

The weight and texture of coffee in your mouth. Can be thin and tea-like, or heavy and syrupy. Also called mouthfeel.

Sweetness

The natural, pleasant sweetness in coffee. Not added sugar. Caramel, honey, and brown sugar notes indicate sweetness.

Bitterness

A sharp, sometimes harsh quality. In small amounts it adds complexity. Too much can overpower other flavors. Dark roasts tend to be more bitter.

Aftertaste

The flavors that linger after swallowing. Also called the finish. Can be short and clean, or long and lingering.

Balance

How well acidity, body, sweetness, and bitterness work together. A balanced coffee has no single element dominating the others.

Complexity

The range and layering of flavors. A complex coffee reveals different notes as it cools. Simple coffees taste one-dimensional.

Clean Cup

A coffee with no off-flavors or interference. Clarity and transparency of flavor. The opposite of muddy or murky.
