How to Use This Journal

Catch more by learning from every trip

WHY KEEP A FISHING LOG?

Successful anglers don't just remember their catches — they study them. A fishing log helps you identify patterns in weather, water, bait, and location that lead to success. Over time, your journal becomes your personal fishing intelligence, turning good days into repeatable strategies.

What to Record Every Trip

- 1. Conditions matter. Record the date, time, weather, water temperature, and tide or current. The same spot can produce very differently depending on conditions.
- 2. Track your bait and tackle. Note the exact lure, bait, hook size, line weight, and rig. What worked today might be the key to tomorrow.
- 3. Measure and record. Species, length, and weight for every catch. Over time, this data reveals which spots produce the biggest fish.
- 4. Mark your spots. Record GPS coordinates or landmark descriptions. Your best fishing holes are worth remembering.
- 5. Note techniques. Casting, trolling, jigging, fly presentation — the how matters as much as the where and what.

Pro Tip: Take a quick photo of each catch with your phone before releasing. The photo's metadata captures the time and GPS location automatically.

Common Fish Species

Know your target before you cast

Largemouth Bass	Most popular freshwater game fish in North America. Loves structure — weed beds, fallen logs, docks. Best lures: plastic worms, crankbaits, jigs.
Smallmouth Bass	Found in clear, rocky lakes and rivers. More aggressive fight than largemouth. Try tube baits, spinnerbaits, and topwater lures.
Rainbow Trout	Cool-water fish in streams, rivers, and lakes. Fly fishing favorite. Effective: spinners, salmon eggs, and nymph patterns.
Walleye	Prime eating fish, active at dawn/dusk and low light. Jigs with minnows, crankbaits trolled along drop-offs.
Northern Pike	Aggressive predators in weedy shallows. Large spoons, spinnerbaits, and swimbaits. Use steel leaders.
Catfish	Bottom feeders, best at night. Chicken liver, cut bait, stink bait on the river bottom.
Crappie	Panfish that school around structure. Small jigs and minnows fished slowly around brush piles.
Bluegill & Sunfish	Perfect for beginners and kids. Worms and small jigs near shallow structure and docks.
Striped Bass	Anadromous game fish, surf and boat. Live eels, bucktails, and topwater poppers.
Salmon	Chinook, Coho, Atlantic. Trolling with spoons, herring, or fly fishing in rivers during runs.

Essential Fishing Knots

The right knot makes all the difference

Improved Clinch Knot

For tying line to hook, lure, or swivel. Pass line through eye, wrap 5-7 times, thread through loop near eye, then through big loop. Lubricate and tighten.

Palomar Knot

One of the strongest knots for braided line. Double the line, pass loop through eye, tie simple overhand, pass lure/loop through the loop, tighten.

Uni Knot

Versatile for line-to-hook and line-to-swatch. Pass line through eye, form loop, wrap tag end 5-7 times through loop, moisten and pull tight.

Blood Knot

For joining two lines of similar diameter. Overlap ends, wrap each around the other 5-6 times in opposite directions, thread through center, tighten.

Surgeon's Loop

For creating a loop at the end of line. Form a loop, tie an overhand knot passing the loop through once more, pull both strands tight.

Snell Knot

For attaching hook to leader. Pass line through eye from front, wrap tag end around shank 5-7 times toward the eye, thread through eye, tighten.

Knot Tip: Always moisten the line before tightening. Dry friction weakens monofilament and braided line significantly.
